

Pubcast: From the 2010 ITWeb Security Summit - The place where physical and digital security meet

Sunday, 13 June 2010

Shaun Bosworth came into the Pubcast studio at the Security Summit to discuss Kaba, a company that merges physical and logical security with their automated safe technology.

What if access to a physical safe could be controlled by Identity and Access Management systems? Or if access could only be performed through auditable processes? Kaba has taken a look at the world of information security and applied the lessons to those steel boxes we call safes.
